

KELLISON GIVES VIEWS ON WATER SITUATION

Says That Miracles Cannot be Accomplished With New Electrical System as Has Been Represented—Immense Saving as Shown is Impossible.

Editor Daily Tribune:—

Your Saturday evening's issue, in its report of the citizens' meeting of Friday night, mentions me as the leader of the opposition movement against the proposed action of the Common Council in regard to our City Water Works, intimates that I deserted my associates in the undertaking, and goes on to state that councilman Clizbe took the platform and convinced every one present that white was black and black white, and that there was really no ground for complaint or fear and that everything was altogether lovely and the goose hung high.

I am not entitled to all the credit of originating the citizen's meeting. Long before the meeting was thought of, or called, numerous taxpayers and consumers of water had spoken to me on the subject and emphatically made known their opposition to the proposed changes and methods. Believing as I did, and do, that the proposed action of the council is radically wrong and that when it has been accomplished it will provoke a storm of wrath and criticism on the part of those directly interested, and that many of these would be around, as is usual in such cases, trying to get lawyers to do impossible things when it is too late, I advised taking time by the forelock and the bull in the china shop by the horns right now.

In regard to my absence from the meeting, I may say that I was at Rochester trying a case that had been set down for trial weeks before the meeting was called and as the case was delayed a day longer than I had calculated on account of the case preceding mine running over a day into our time, it was absolutely impossible for me to attend the meeting.

When I found that I could not attend, I wrote a letter to Mr. L. M. Lauer, who I supposed might be chairman of the meeting, telling him in substance that I was unalterably opposed to the action and proposed action of the Council and that they could count me to assist in every way in fighting the matter to a finish.

The contents of this letter was not made known to the meeting, owing to the fact that Mr. Lauer did not get there until the meeting was well under way.

My judgment and opinion in the matter had been formed long ago, from much observation, inquiry and study of the question, and so far as I am concerned the principal object of the meeting was to ascertain whether the taxpayers and consumers of water were going to merely content themselves with growling, whether they were going to lie down and cringe under the lash like whipped curs or whether they were going to fight to protect their interests and rights like men.

When a faker is getting the people's money in a shell game, the real question is to determine whether the game shall be stopped, and not to listen to long winded protestations of good intentions on the part of the offender, or to permit him to entertain and delight his audience with exhibitions of his skill by getting the bystanders to guess which shell the pea is under, and proving to them that it is under the other shell.

If a man should come to me today and tell me that he would sell me Carter's lead for three cents per pound, and good lined oil at twenty-five cents per gallon, when I know that the lead is worth eight cents per pound and oil eighty-five cents per gallon, I would know that he was a fraud and a prevaricator, and it would be folly to waste time in listening to his explanations.

And so it is in the water works business. From all that has been published in the papers, in the way of reports of the water works committee, of which Mr. Clizbe is chairman, and from what the Tribune published of Mr. Clizbe's explanation at the Friday night meeting, it appears that Mr. Clizbe is undertaking to make the people believe that he is in the possession of information, secrets and facts that if true would revolutionize the industrial world and make the miracles of old look like thirty cents.

Mr. Snoberger, under the management and tutelage of Mr. Clizbe, is going to make a 7 or 8 Horse Power Pump do the work of a 100 Horse Power Pump. Mr. Snoberger under the wizard hand of Mr. Clizbe is going to make a ton of steam coal generate and bring forth 3 times as much steam power as the city can get out of the same ton of steam coal, with such veteran engineers as John G. Leonard in charge.

We are going to have water pumps that will do ten times as much work, in proportion to their size and capacity, as the pumps we now have, but the funny part of these mysterious and mythical pumps is that they will not work if the city attempts to run them, but that they will only do these wonderful things when operated by the Snoberger plant.

These pumps that Clizbe speaks of are no doubt wonderful works of mechanism, possessing almost human intelligence, but I don't like their muffled and stubborn propensities. They won't work for the city and it would be no use trying to get them to do so, but the awful fear comes upon me, what if they should balk and get stubborn with Snoberger and refuse to pump. We would be absolutely at the mercy of these pumps, unless there should be some other man in the city that could tame them and make them work. And what would be the cost of securing the services of a professional pump tamer. It would be something terrific no doubt, and I shrink from contemplating the cost.

Again, we are told that the Council has made another discovery that is nothing short of a miracle.

A steel or iron basin, or tank has been discovered that can stand in the boiling sun of July, August and September, and keep water about as cool as when it comes from the bowels of the earth. True, nobody has seen this wonderful and amazing tank. No body even knows where one is to be seen in operation, but that it exists in the imagination of the chairman of the water works committee there can be no doubt, for he has declared it himself.

That there is such a thing as a thermal bottle which has the property to keep fluids placed therein, either cool or warm for several hours, there can be no doubt, but they are very expensive affairs. I see that a pint thermal bottle is advertised for sale for several dollars and larger ones in the same proportion. A giant thermal tank, even if possible would probably cost a half million dollars, and if Mr. Clizbe has discovered the secret of making one hundred thousand gallon thermal tanks at the trifling cost of five thousand dollars, I think he could get a billion dollars for his patent before sundown.

Then, water is to be pumped to a height of 110 feet, and pressure still maintained in the water mains, to supply the consumers with their daily water, with the expenditure of about thirty percent of the cost of keeping up the pressure now and with the extra work of elevating the water to that great height. But this cannot be done by the city, at all for the reason these miraculous pumps that are to do the work, won't budge an inch or work for anybody but Snoberger. I suppose that these pumps are anti-municipal ownership pumps and won't work for a municipal corporation.

These are but a few of the self-evident absurdities that are being proposed. They make the stories of the Arabian Nights and the tales of Baron Munchausen pale into insignificance.

A man who is ready to believe such stuff is ready to purchase a gold brick or a solid gold watch for fifty cents.

Now, that the Editor of the Tribune has gone back on the people, and seems to be fighting in the ranks of those he opposed but a few short moons ago, we will have to look out sharper than before for breakers.

Has it ever occurred to you, dear reader, that it is the same old story of the sheep, the dogs

From Ringold, the regiment was sent to Port Tampa, Fla., where on June 3 it was loaded onto transports to sail for Cuba, but a collision in the harbor made it necessary to unload and on July 30, a transfer was made to Ferdinand, Fla., near Jacksonville.

LOOK FOR WHISKERS.

Those Searching Heavens for Halley's Comet Can Easily Discern It.

Halley's comet, tail and all, is now within the range of the naked eye. If you were up at 3:40 a. m. and happened to observe two stars where apparently there should be but one, there was no occasion for misgivings. The other one was Halley's.

The best time to observe the comet without instruments is between 3:45 a. m. and 4:05 a. m. It should be easy to find tomorrow morning. If you care to experiment, here is the advice: Look straight east and then just a little to the north at 3:45 o'clock. You will find a star there which looks like any other star until you have concentrated your gaze long enough to tell the difference. The difference is the "whiskers."

Venus rises fifteen minutes before the comet does. This is a sort of curtain raiser for the real performance, for if the observer is watching Venus, all he needs to do is to count off fifteen minutes and then look around for the comet. Venus rises 6 degrees south of east. The comet is nearly 8 degrees north of east. There is, therefore, a difference of approximately 14 degrees between Venus and Halley's celestial tramp. The comet today is making about 1,866 miles a minute. It will slack up a little tomorrow when it heads for aphelion, according to astronomers, which means farthest from the sun. When it pulls up at aphelion, turns and starts back, it will be 500,000,000 miles beyond Neptune our most remote planet. Meanwhile look out for those whiskers.

Will Investigate Potato Culture.

The potato is native to the western continent. Why is it that while the average yield of potatoes to the acre in the United States is 80 to 90 bushels, the average yield of potatoes in Ireland, France, Holland and Germany ranges in the neighborhood of 200 bushels? The explanation is not to be found in the soil or climate, for now and then individual American growers have beaten the European average. The department of agriculture is looking into the matter for the benefit of American farmers. As a part of its investigation it has commissioned a Colorado farmer Eugene Grubb, to go to Europe and learn all the conditions under which great potato crops are secured.

He was one of the strongest batters on the Argos team and was relied upon for an errorless infield game. Shaffer will materially strengthen the team this year.

Ruse in left field, and Myers in Center, are new players known only by the recommendations which manager Ormond has received. Otto Long has been playing a star game on the local high school nine, and it is predicted that he will make good on the Clipper team. Myers played on the Purdue University team last year and shows a record of fast infield playing on the college team. He should make good in outfield.

Every fan in Plymouth knows Ward and the hitting which he did last year. He will be back at third base, as good as ever.

George Ogden who will pitch is a brother to Joseph Ogden, the old catcher and has pitched fine ball at Milford during the past couple of years. Guy Spencer of Columbia City comes well recommended for the local box. The pitchers will be substituted in outfield.

The Tipton team with which the locals will meet in their initial game next Sunday, have been organized for three weeks, and are said to be a fast organization. Meanwhile baseball dope, is gaining ground in gossip about Plymouth.
